Michelle C. Michaels is an experienced litigation attorney whose practice focuses on general liability, premises liability, automobile accidents, personal injury, wrongful death, and insurance defense matters. She manages a substantial litigation docket and represents clients through all phases of the legal process, from case evaluation and discovery through mediation, settlement negotiations, and trial preparation.

Prior to practicing law in the United States, Michelle built a strong professional foundation through legal and administrative adjudication roles and brings a unique perspective to her practice as both an attorney and healthcare professional. Her background in nursing enhances her ability to analyze complex medical issues, evaluate damages, and work effectively with medical experts in litigation matters.

Michelle has extensive experience developing litigation strategy, conducting depositions, preparing and arguing dispositive motions, coordinating expert witnesses, and advising clients on liability exposure and risk assessment. She is also recognized for mentoring legal professionals, managing litigation teams, and providing strategic guidance throughout the life of a case.

She earned her law degree from Igbinedion University and holds a Master of Science in Nursing from Purdue University Global, as well as a Bachelor of Science in Nursing from the University of Memphis. Michelle is licensed to practice law in Texas and Missouri and is also admitted to the Nigerian Bar.

Michelle's practice is distinguished by her combination of legal advocacy, medical knowledge, and leadership experience, allowing her to deliver practical, results-driven representation to clients facing complex litigation matters.
